A Royal Fright.

Madato, January 10 .- For several hours on Saturday, the city was excited over sensational reports that the infant Isabella, sister of the late King Alfonso, had been kidnapped or killed. The infant had gone out in the carriage to follow the royal huntsmen in the Praedo. She occupied her carriage alone, and was escorted by three aids. In a remote part of the great park the carriage broke down, throwing the infanta into a ditch. She was not hurt, although it was feared she was, It was deemed prudent for her to remain at the scene of the accident until assistance could be procured, and for this a tackey was dispatched. Much time was lost in all this. In the meantime, the huntsmen had gone on a great distance before they missed their royal mistress, and when they discovered that she was no longer with them, they became greatly frightened, started a general alarm and begun a noisy search. The prolonged absence of the infanta from the Castle caused uneasiness there and finally the police and troops were sent out in search of her. Isabella, sister of the late King Alfonso speaking for the court in this case, says: "The principle which governs the whole matter is this? Disorders which disturb only the peace of the ship, or these on board, are to be dealt with exclusively by the soverighty of the home of the ship, but those which disturb the repose of the people at the shore may be suppressed, and, if need by the proper authorities of local jurisdiction. It may not be easy, at all times, to say to which of the two jurisdictions the particular.
